Description of Property and Eligibility Determination (Use continuation sheet if necessary and attach map and photo)

The one-story with wing, Colonial Revival influenced house has a side gabled roof. A three step stoop leads up to the simple doorway and the entrance has a pedimented entry porch with curved underside. The house is sided with vinyl or aluminum siding and the foundation appears to be concrete.

The years leading up to World War II in Prince George's County saw a large increase in the population due to the county's close proximity to the nation's capital and the improvement of the roadway systems. The population of Prince George's County increased from 60,000 to 90,000 inhabitants between 1930 and 1940. The establishment of Andrews Air Force Base in 1942 led to both military and civilian developments. The automobile allowed expansion beyond the traditional town design and as the post-World War II era progressed, new road construction resulted in the suburbanization of the previously sparsely-settled portions of northern Prince George's County. Maryland Route 5 (Branch Avenue), constructed in 1950, served as a major artery around the western edge of Andrews Air Force Base. Old Branch Avenue is located off of Branch Avenue.
